I hereby certify that I have examined the above accounts, and find them correctly cast and properly vouched.

ORREN C. SALTMARSH, Auditor.

In submitting our annual report, your committee have thought best to drop the usual custom of reporting each school in detail and stating which of the teachers in our opinion were successful in their work, and those who were not. The parents in each school know, if they take any interest at all in their children's advancement in educational pursuits, whether the teacher labored for the good of the school or otherwise, and no words of ours will increase the fruit of their labor or make their failures any less. As will be seen by the statistical table there has been seventeen terms taught, each school receiving the same number of weeks with the exception of the Centre and Chateaugay schools, they having money left from last year received more. In teaching the seventeen terms, twelve different teachers were employed six of them were experienced teachers, the remaining six entering the field for the first time. As a general rule the teachers gave good satisfaction. It has been very difficult the past year to obtain teachers at the price we were obliged to pay, and your committee would advise the district to raise more money than that required by law, so that we can pay our teachers as much as they do in surrounding towns. The school-room should be made pleasant, convenient and attractive. Some of the school-houses in town ought to be put in better condition, or new ones erected more in keeping with the spirit and progress of the times. We think that if some of the parents continue to war against the new law it will be impossible to carry on successful schools.
